

How GRIRR
turned a seemingly hopeless
Ronnak Khatoon to normalcy

Garden Reach Institute for Research and Rehabilitation

Ronnak could not move her neck from birth.

Ronnak's neuro
and spinal nerves were intertwined.

Two operations
were prescribed.

Her parents did not have the funds for the operation.

The result is that she was unable to turn
her head, speak
or respond.

Just when things appeared hopeless, her parents turned to the NGO GRIRR.

GRIRR put her on a strict physiotherapy
regime.

Ronnak is now almost recovered. She can turn her
neck like others.
She can speak
and respond.

She is currently undergoing
tuitions and will be enrolling in a school.

GRIRR
helped turn
a challenging
case around.
